Around the World

Different people from different parts of the world express their feelings and opinions in different ways. In Chile, greeting somebody with a kiss on the cheek is normal but in other countries, like Japan, it could lead to a misunderstanding. This is why it's important to know other people's boundaries. Learning how to express your feelings and opinions is very important to develop your own personality, but listening to the other person is equally important.

If you visit another country, learn a few polite phrases, listen to traditional music, taste the food - every little effort can have a positive effect. After you understand a few basic rules, you will soon discover just how similar we all are.

The Importance of Play

Do you remember when you were a little child? What games did you play? Kicking a ball? Jumping rope? Creating an imaginary world? Experts agree that playing is important for children to develop into healthy adults. Here are five ways that play benefits kids:

- 1 Play helps children develop their own interests.
- 2 When they play, children learn how to make decisions and solve problems.
- 3 Children learn how to control their emotions, such as anger and fear, when they play.
- 4 Play helps children make friends.
- 5 Play makes children happy!

Play is not just for kids, but for teenagers and adults as well. It helps us learn, it relieves stress, and it makes us more productive at school and at work. Play isn't a luxury—it is a necessity. So when you have some free time, don't just sit and watch TV. Engage in some brain-stimulating play!
